The making of a false statement is an offence under Section 20J(2) of the Stock Diseases Act — maximum penalty $22,000.
There may also be offences under the Fair Trading Act or the Trade Practices Act.

All purchasers of cattle should retain this Declaration. (Vendors may wish to keep a photocopy of the Declaration.) NSW Department of Primary Industries recommends that all cattle should be tested for EBL before entry to a new herd unless the cattle originate from a herd that has the status MONITORED FREE. Interpretation of the EBL test results should be discussed with your veterinarian. A single negative EBL test of an animal from a herd that has a status other than MONITORED FREE, or of an animal of unknown origin, may not guarantee freedom from EBL.

All EBL Vendor Declaration Forms printed before November 2004 are no longer valid and must not be used.

Vendors and purchasers: Keep this EBL Vendor Declaration form handy for use when you purchase or sell cattle privately, through saleyards or through agents. Use of this form is not compulsory but it will protect you against financial loss in such an eventuality.

Purchasers: When a vendor signs one of these forms upon sale of cattle which are subsequently tested positive to EBL within the 14-day period after leaving the Vendor's property, you, as purchaser of the cattle, are entitled to a full refund of the purchase price plus transport costs.

All EBL Vendor Declaration Forms printed before November 2004 are no longer valid and must not be used.
