

NSW NATIVE GAME BIRD MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Using the digital native game bird hunter diary

Thank you for taking part in the Native Game Bird Management Program (NGBMP). Your volunteer assistance and safe, ethical practices allow this important program to continue supporting NSW landholders.

Accurate and timely harvest reports are essential to the integrity and value of the NGBMP to the NSW community.

- You are required to record the landholder's available game duck allocation no sooner than 48 hours before your hunt in the Hunter Diary.
- After your hunt, you are required to report the number and types of game duck you harvested while hunting. This is so we can track harvests against the approved state quotas each year, to ensure native game bird hunting is managed in a sustainable way.

This digital Native Game Bird Hunter Diary allows you to comply with NGBMP rules for recording property game duck allocations before you hunt and recording your game duck harvests after you hunt, online or using a smartphone. We have provided a digital Hunter Diary for your convenience, however you can still use the hardcopy Hunter Diary.
